

Ellis, Donald G.

Deliberative Communication and Ethnopolitical Conflict

New York, Bern, Berlin, Bruxelles, Frankfurt am Main, Oxford, Wien, 2012. VIII, 247 pp.

Language as Social Action. Vol. 13

General Editor: Howard Giles

Print: ISBN 978-1-4331-1174-7 hb. (Hardcover)
SFR 85.00 / €* 75.60 / €** 77.80 / € 70.70 / £ 57.00 / US$ 91.95

Order online: www.peterlang.com

Book synopsis

Examining the close relationship between principles of deliberative democracy, communication, and conflict resolution, this book argues that the nature of deliberative processes is underappreciated for conflict resolution in ethnopolitically divided societies, and that the communicative nature of democratic deliberation is ripe for theoretical and empirical expansion. The book examines the potential of deliberative democracy to contribute to conflict resolution, including issues of argument, deliberation, and political communication. Attention is also paid to the role of media, technology, and the internet.

Offering a fully developed understanding of democratic communication and the resolution of conflicts, this book is suitable for scholars as well as students in upper division and graduate courses in a range of areas including communication, politics and government, sociology, and conflict studies.

About the author(s)/editor(s)

Donald G. Ellis is on the faculty of the University of Hartford. He is a specialist in communication and conflict resolution, especially ethnopolitical conflicts. Dr. Ellis is the former editor of the journal Communication Theory and the author of numerous books and articles. He is a recipient of research awards and was a Fulbright scholar in 2004-2005.

Our prices are recommended retail prices and are exclusive of shipping costs. We reserve the right to alter prices. We supply to libraries at a discount of 5%.

* incl. VAT - only applies to Germany and EU customers without VAT Reg No

** incl. VAT - only applies to Austria